CURRICULUM

At early stage of education child learns whatever he/she sees hears, feels, touches and explores. But knowledge has no color, form or shape. So for a child it is very difficult to understand these abstract and shapeless concepts. At Little Daffodil (An International School & A Play School) we provide shape to these concepts. Our curriculum is based on the idea that each child is a unique individual. Our focus is on meeting each child's developmental, Social, emotional, intellectual and educational needs.

To achieve these objectives, the curriculum at Little Daffodil (An International School & A Play School) follows the principles of integrated education. Integrated education is one that enables students:

To weave the development of their physical self with the development of their mind, the emotional, social and inner self.

To make connection between different forms of knowledge, self-development and creative expression.

We have designed our school and classroom to offer challenging play and learning choice at a wide range of developmental levels. Learning centers allow children the opportunity to explore, problems solving, investigate, work together as a team and meet with group work, small groups and individual instruction each day.

The outcome is the nurturing of the “whole person” who seeks to learn, to think critically, to relate, to create and to choose with maturity and concern for others. In other words, the development of the individual child who is in tune with his own thinking and creative self as he is with the development of the world around him.
